Letters From France

And Elsewhere

Troop "C," Candidate Section, Cav. C. C. F. S.
Camp Stanley, Texas, Oct. 18, 1918.

Dear Father:
Arrived in Camp last evening. We are located about 24 miles from San Antonio, Texas. The camp is on a high plateau, or seems that way. Most of the fellows who came with me here do not appear to like it, but I do.

The day's program was: Issued saddle, bridle and other equipments, then to the stable and groomed a horse, then soaped or cleaned our saddle, bridle, and this afternoon cleaned my rifle and sabre, also bridle bits. You might think this a small task, but everything will have to be "spick and span."

There are a lot of horses here, but will have more, as this is an Artillery Cavalry Camp. I can see myself working every minute when the school opens Monday.

We not only study but work, too. I know I will learn more about horses here in a month than I ever knew.

After we left New Orleans we had a very nice time, but it was dark shortly after we left. We crossed the Mississippi river on a ferry or, rather the train ran on this ferry, and was hauled over by a steam boat. We all got out on the ferry and sang.

It was wonderful. Then it was, not long until we went to bed, but when we awoke we were in the prairie lands of Texas, where grazing and cotton raising is the principal occupation. Some large herds of cattle and mules, also large fields of cotton. We could see for miles on either side of the train; very level, but give me old Pennsylvania.

At San Antonio we laid over for four or five hours and looked part of the town over. It is a very nice city, to my way of thinking. In short, it was a wonderful trip, and so far I am glad I applied for cavalry.

I did not expect to see any one here that I knew, but today I saw and talked to Joe Lenhart, a fellow who worked in the same office as I at Steelton. Of course, we ten fellows who came together have gotten pretty well acquainted and are sticking together, but are not in the same Troop. A fellow by the name of Mann and I, of Altoona, are "bunkies." By "bunkies" I mean we bunk near each other. He was in the cavalry before and has been of great help to me. You know I never had much drilling at Camp Lee, and today I cleaned my rifle and took it apart as he told me how. Of course, the rifle we use is different than yours. We can take several pieces apart and each part has a name as well as each part of the saddle and bridle, which we will have to learn by name.

Coming down on the train from Roanoke, Va., to Chattanooga, Tenn., I met a veterinary doctor by the name of Mathew, who practiced in Cumberland, Md., but whose home is in Clearfield, Pa. He was commissioned a Second Lieutenant in the Veterinary Corps and is on the Purchasing Board. He proved to be very interesting, as he knows a lot about stock as well as farming. He has made a study of it, as he spent four or five years in college. I got some good "pointers" from him.

This is all I will write this time. Don't put off writing, as it will take some time for this to reach you and a reply come back.

Loveingly,
Walter Fisher

Somewhere in France.

Dear Mother:
I will write you a few lines to let you know I am well and hope you are all the same. We got along fine coming over. This is a nice place where we are, only a couple of miles from a town. I am glad I got out of Camp Lee, for I was tired of that place. I was there very near eleven months. Chalmers Calhoun saw Ed. Price here. I haven't seen him. There are a couple of other fellows in the same bunch from home. I saw a bunch of German prisoners they have in this camp. Some of them are pretty young and some of them are old men. I guess they are glad to be prisoners. The news from the front is very good now. We can get American papers here. They are printed in Paris. Tell John that Bob Wegeman has a commission. He is an aviator and was an instructor in the United States for a while, but I don't know where he is now. Well, guess I will close for this time. Don't know much to write. Don't worry about me, I will get along all right. Hoping to hear from you soon. I remain your son,

Oct. 9, 1918.

Dear Friend V. E. P.:
Today I received two copies of the Gazette from father the ones you sent have not reached me.

I saw in "Dunk Botts" contribution that you and Bill Brice had a squabble "Pourquoi." When I read some of the correspondents contributions I laughed more than I ever did at the Bingville Bugle also Dunk allusion to Wade Figards moustache and deficiency in Orthography was very Parce que Je l'ai s'heu.

Phillips Boys mention of The Bargain House catalogue reminds me of the many hours I've spent wondering just which of the beautiful things I would purchase and made me really home sick to see one again. I would not put it to the use which his squib would imply, as we have the real things in rolls "Over Here."

I sure would like to get the Gazette each week if it would come that way. I got one copy some time ago from which I got Ralph Knisely's and Cecil Snyder's addresses. I wrote to both of them, got a reply from Ralph but not from Cecil. If that red-headed puffer don't answer me the next time I come to teachers Institute I'll start something with him.

I saw in yesterday's contentment edition of the N. Y. Herald the names of several of my former friends in the casualty list, among them was Howard Booty.

Somehow or other I clear forgot the Osterburg Picnic this year. But I guess they got along alright without me.

My wife and I went to a little concert last Saturday evening and not being able to understand French rapidly enough to get the drift of the songs I improved my time making a sketch of the pianist.

I don't know what caused, [...]
Well, its bedtime I'll finish tomorrow.

Well this is tomorrow I haven't heard of any new developments today but just want to say a word in general.

I have noticed in some of the papers that the sugar allotment in the states has been cut to 2 lbs. per month, you should worry. The French civilians can only get half that amount, 500 grammes is the allotment and they can't get any more for love nor money. Tickets each month for bread 300 gr. per day Military permissionnaires are allowed 500 gr. or 1-10 lbs. per day, sugar 500 gr. per month. Petrol, coal and gasoline and you can't get either, without your ticket and only as much as your ticket calls for. Eggs are 9 sons apiece and milk 15 sons a litre, a son is equal to 1 cent, a litre about a quart.

You folks over there as yet haven't received a taste of real war economy. I noticed that we were requested to bake at least 25 per cent of substitute in your bread. Well these people have forgotten what wheat bread looks like. We get real honest to goodness white bread baked by our own bakeries here in Paris. Fresh every day and it is as good as Wards or states. We have our own gardens, out where Marie Amborette started her garden for past time, but we are putting it to practical use and for the past while we have been getting, cabbage, cauliflower and other things which make a welcome addition to the army ration.

In addition to being able to buy tobacco at canteens we are issued 4 ounces of smoking tobacco every 10 days sometimes Bull other times P. A. Velvet or Tux I generally manage to get some French tobacco and pipe smoking. Its pretty hard to get tobacco for the groceries and stores only get it about once a week and on that day there is generally a line up of French for about a block waiting to get it and they portion it out so it will go as far as possible.

Well I guess I'm coming near the end of my string. I hope the Kaiser gets all that's coming to him, this new peace drive of his is clearly seen through I think. I hope that peace will soon come but the right kind of peace and I know that that is the only kind of a peace that will be agreed to by the Allies.

Will write again some time hoping to receive a reply sometime soon I remain as ever

Dear Dad and Mother:-

I will try today to answer all of your good letters which I received in the last two days, have had mail twice in that time, so in all I have gotten five letters which were worth a mint to me. I received all of the pictures that brother Fred sent except the large one he spoke of, but perhaps may get it yet. It really is wonderful that we get the mail as we do considering the circumstances. Also I got a letter from Ray with a lot of pictures, and I can truthfully say I never enjoyed getting anything in my life as much as these last letters and pictures. Of course from dear old quiet America make you a little home sick, but that feeling only lasts a short time as you are roused from any soliqueness of any kind by the scream of a shell over head, which makes you duck for an empty shell hole in a trench if there are any handy I mean of the latter as for shell holes. There could never be a correct estimation of the amount of shell holes in even a square mile of any of these battle fields. And the only remarkable thing that I see about them is that one can be thankful if he is not a victim of a new one that is made, yourself standing on Grand View Point at home, only that my illustration takes in more territory, you would have to imagine just as much territory behind you as you would or try at least to show how many shells it would take to literally plow that whole area one beside the other and often two in the same places, until there is not scarcely and unbroken ground left and this is only one small section compared to the (Continued on Fifth Page)

FRANK R. BLACKBURN

New Paris
Mr. and Mrs. Dewalt Blackburn of near New Paris received a telegram from Washington D. C. on Saturday announcing the death of their son, Frank R. Blackburn, who was in the service in France. Mr. Blackburn was one of the 77 boys to leave Bedford on April 3rd for Camp Lee; but owing to an accident that befell him he did not go until April 30. He arrived in France sometime prior to May 30. In a drive made shortly before October 3, he was wounded by a bullet from a machine gun. While in a hospital he wrote his parents a letter dated October 3rd. His death occurred October 17, and was aged 30 years 7 months and 6 days. He was a member of the U. B. church and will be much missed at home especially by his mother. The parents have that sympathy of the entire community in their bereavement. Mr. Blackburn is the first of the fourteen boys from New Paris and vicinity to give his life for the cause of his country in the war with Germany. Mr. Blackburn was a cousin of Hazel Suter linotype operator at the Gazette.

THE CANTEN.

Soldier boys driving trucks through our town are now staying in the Canteen at nights. The room has been comfortably heated, plenty of hot water and good drinking water supplied. The boys greatly appreciate the jelly, pickles and other luxuries so generously contributed by our out-of-town friends as well as our town people. Last Saturday two bushels of apples were contributed. Needless to say what they mean to the boys.

A large box of ivory soap and two dozen turkish towels, kindly given by Mrs. Bretz. A First Aid Kit, fully equipped with all needed surgical supplies for the Canteen, was given by Mrs. A. W. Archer from New York. This surgical case will be in charge of Miss Ellen Doty.

The Committee collecting clothing for France and Belgium wish to express their grateful appreciation to the people of Bedford and vicinity for the very generous contributions of good warm clothing. Fourteen large boxes have been packed at the Canteen and shipped to headquarters.

Christmas customs will be at the Canteen and can be gotten there.

A committee of ladies has arranged for a series of suppers and other entertainments, to be given just as soon as all danger from influenza is over.

The above subscription shows a marked increase over that secured in the previous Loan, when twenty-four of the thirty-nine districts of Bedford County subscribed $155,700 through the Woman's Committee.

The work of the Woman's Committee in the Fourth Liberty Loan has been especially trying under the adverse conditions of the epidemic of influenza which has lately over-run the County, interfering with the work of individual members of the Committee, preventing the holding of public meetings and generally handicapping the Committee most seriously. The result, as given above, reflects the greatest possible credit upon the courage and the patriotism of the women who refused to be disheartened and who, in the face of extraordinary difficulty, worked the harder to help Bedford County fill its quota.

In making this report I would express my sincerest thanks for the willingness and the spirit of co-operation which have prevailed, and I would offer my sincerest congratulations to the Woman's Committee for the results obtained.

Respectfully submitted,
MARGARET R. HULSE,
(Mrs. S. C. Hulse)
Director, Woman's Liberty Loan Department, Bedford County.

GUY BOLLINGER, CHARLES LEADER and CYRIL STRAUB, killed in ACTION.

GUY BOLLINGER.

Guy Bollinger, formerly the Gazette's linotypist was killed in action September 27, last in the big drive against the Germans.

Guy was 28 years old, was a faithful servant made a good soldier being private in the ranks. He went to Camp with Co. L from Bedford and was in the South a long while before he was transferred to France. He evidently was put into action at once, being due to his training over here. He is a son of Mrs. George Bollinger, of Bedford. His father died some time ago while he was in Camp. He leaves to survive besides his mother, two brothers, Charles, of Altoona, and John at home. He was a member of the Reformed church and of St. John's Bible class.

CHARLES B. LEADER

Charles B. Leader, also of Co. L, was killed on September 26, the day previous, to young Bollinger's death. Young Leader is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Murray Leader, and leaves besides his parents, two sisters at home and two brothers in France, Burton and Thomas. Burton has been gassed and Thomas is sick in a hospital in France. He has been a member of the National Guard for several years and with Burton was on the Border for eight months. He was Sergeant in the army and was capable.

CYRIL J. STRAUB.

Besides the two above sacrifices for Liberty and Freedom Bedford people will mourn the loss of its other splendid young man, Sergeant Cyril J. Straub who was officially reported as having died on October 1st from wounds received in the same battle which his two comrades and school mates fell. He was a quiet jovial, jolly, good boy, and helped his father W. H. Straub, merchant in the store until called to the colors for war service. He leaves his father and mother and one brother Vincent, who is in France in war service.

This makes six boys of Co. L who have fallen, the former three being Howard Booty, Bedford, William S. Cathers, Pavia, and Adolphus Hymes of Schellsburg.

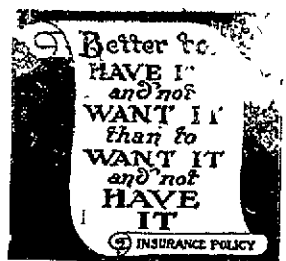

POST OFFICE ROBBED.

Last night some time possibly while we were celebrating the fake peace report some person entered the post office by forcing open the rear doors, blowing open the safe and capturing about $300 in cash and $9000 in war savings stamps. The plunderer was up to the trick and is likely a professional at the business. He used old horse blankets and old rags to smother the explosion which he left behind along with a short handled sledge hammer and other old junk appropriated for the entrance. Everybody seems to have heard the explosion some at 9 o'clock while the parade was going on, others at eleven and others at three in the morning. In fact no one knows who did it, or when it was done, but some one near the suspicion of most people because of the fact that they did have time to take advantage of the demonstration for any distance away. Postal authorities are at work along with the State Police trying to cipher out the culprits but all is darkness now.

Postmaster Endfield was apprised of the fact by the janitor, Mr. Luman about 6 o'clock. Rumors of masked men being seen in the community last night are abroad but no trace of any thing has been found. Possibly $50.00 in U. S. postage stamps were taken also.

"Mike snort a troubled evening. "Jane Gordon," the celebrated actress, was playing "Sue of the Mountain," a feature of which would be her famous shadow dance. And of course Jane Gordon was Sue, his little Sue! In solitude the great actress had been perfecting her part. But when she came to John Burrows after the play she looked up at him with Sue's own happy smile.

"I shall always be glad," said Jane Gordon, "that you loved me in spite of all!"

STORING FOOD FOR THE WINTER

Problems of Residents of Small Towns Being Considered.

HOW IT CAN BEST BE DONE

Practical Suggestions Which Will Result in a Saving Both of Money and of Food.

The problem of storing vegetables, especially in the smaller cities and towns of the State is one that has been receiving the attention of the Food Administration. Cheaper and better vegetables can be purchased in season from those who grow them than in the winter from the stores, and therefore, the storage of vegetables for the winter not only saves shipping space but it also saves on the winter grocery bill.

Farmers and others with large plots of ground can store their vegetables in out door caves, but the town dweller who has a heating plant in his basement and no out door space, faces a more serious problem.

Using the Basement.

It is sometimes possible to partition off a corner of the basement which has at least one window and to use the enclosure for a storage room. The windows are essential both for light and to even the temperature of the room, which would otherwise be too warm. The room must be made tight enough so that its temperature may be kept different from the rest of the cellar. It should be plastered, if possible, and have a close fitting door.

The earth floor is the best on account of the moisture which it supplies and an air-duct made of wood or metal should be fitted to one of the windows. The room should also be proof against mice.

Movable containers for the vegetables are better than bins and slat-racks to hold the containers will insure a free circulation of air.

TURKEYS' PART IN FOOD SAVING

Sound Economy Not to Market Fowls Too Early.

PUT ON WEIGHT IN FALL

No Hens Dressing Under Six Pounds Nor Gobblers Under Eight Should Be Killed.

The turkey is still a wild fowl. All of the efforts of the farmer and breeder have failed to domesticate this wanderer into a barnyard dependent that puts on fat at the whim of the owner. A chicken will put feed into fat at almost any age and at any time the crop is kept filled with the right kind of feed.

The young turkey, however, is a long-legged, bug hunter until the winter that of feathers is put on and nature suggests that it is time to store up a reserve for rigorous weather. Turkeys will put on weight rapidly and economically at that season and raisers should take advantage of it.

This, too, is the season when fields provide plenty of feed that would otherwise go to waste and, in the case of weed seeds, would do damage to future crops.

Striking Weight Comparisons.

Now, when we have need for every ounce of food that can be put into form for human consumption, whether ground by mills or gizzards, it is the soundest economy to let the young turkeys live through the fall bug-and-seed-hunting season.

A young gobbler that weighs ten pounds in October will weigh twelve or thirteen sixty days later if given a little extra feed along toward the end of that period. A hen in the same time will fill out from seven pounds to nine or ten. Such satisfactory gains can be made at no other time in the bird's life. It is the season when nature is preparing for winter. The turkey hasn't earned to depend on the farmer's grain bins.

The United States Food Administration suggests that in order to take advantage of this favorable season for putting on gains that no young turkey hens weighing less than six pounds dressed should be marketed. Young gobblers should be of sufficient size to dress at least eight pounds before being sold. Let the turkeys develop and grow fat.

America must literally feed the world during the war and at the same time prepare to rebuild the world's food supplies when victory brings peace.

It is impossible to over-produce any line of essential food.—U. S. Food Administration.

FATAL ENVELOPE

By MARGARET D. JOYCE.

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

It was Saturday afternoon, and Martha Graham was on her way home after a very busy morning in the office of a large leather concern. As she neared the new tunnel she pointed, "I don't like this new way of going home." But she later changed her mind.

After depositing her fare in the slot she started down the stairs. Half way down she spied an envelope which was being trampled on by the crowd. As she stooped to pick it up, the on-rushing crowd would have thrown her down if a young sailor had not caught her in the nick of time. She half stammered, "Thank you." Tipping his hat he soon disappeared into the waiting train.

A second later Martha remembered where she was, and hurried into the train just before the door closed.

As usual the train was crowded. Martha was about to reach for a strap, when she felt a light tap on her shoulder. Turning, she saw the same young man who had previously befriended her. He offered her his seat, which was gladly accepted.

After a short ride she reached her destination, a little furnished room which she called "home." It was not until now that she opened the envelope which had caused so much confusion. She extracted a ticket which would admit one to the baseball game that afternoon.

Now Martha had never attended a ball game, so she then and there decided to go, as everyone talked a great deal about this beloved pastime.

She hurriedly ate a meager meal, which was satisfying to her, as the thoughts of attending one of the world series games gave her but little appetite. As she thought of the happenings of that morning she decided that it would have been uneventful without the helpful sailor. Indeed, she thought of him more than once.

After a great deal of wasted time she left the house and proceeded to the park where the game was to be played.

As she handed the ticket to the man she blushed guiltily at the thought of cheating some one from a good game. She passed through a great deal of rigmarole, and finally was seated in the front row of the bleachers.

Five minutes or more elapsed, and Martha, nervously glancing around, saw her friend the sailor, who in reality was John Lynn, coming to a vacant seat beside her. He very quickly recognized her, and by the time the game started they were chatting merrily.

The game proceeded, and Martha found herself cheering as lustily as any of the other fans. She decided which side she wanted to win and put all her strength in yelling for them. Finally the game ended, the score in favor of Martha's choice.

John received Martha's permission to escort her home. By the time they reached there they were like old friends.

As the weeks passed the sailor and the once lonesome girl's friendship ripened into love. But fate destined, to change this state of bliss. It came shortly. John came to see Martha, and he had sad news for her. His ship was to sail for service in foreign waters for the duration of the war.

Martha bravely bore the news until he left the house. Then she cried until her eyes were red and swollen.

The next two weeks were occupied by shopping and getting ready for the departure.

The night before he went John put a solitaire on Martha's finger, and as "Dan Cupid" sounded the call to arms, ever-ready John and Martha responded.

Women in Britain Cut Logs.

A quarter of a million women in England are now working more or less regularly on the land, says the London Observer. The great majority are village women who go out from their cottages and work for the farmers. Seven thousand are in the new land army, which employs women who are recruited for a certain term and sends them wherever they are required.

The women in the land army enlist either for 12 or six months. In case of 12 months they receive two complete outfits free, consisting of a dress, corduroy breeches, strong boots, leggings, overalls and hat. They also get for the year one jersey and one mackintosh. They are given four or six weeks' free instruction at a training center. Their pay on the farm ranges from $2 to $5 a week.

For a girl who joins the army for six months there is no training. She goes straight away to the land and begins on the work requiring less skill. Services of women enrolled in the land army are available for timber cutting and hay baling.

Why Not, Bully?

Have we no English word of acclamation that we must cry "Bravo!" regardless of gender or number? The headline of a newspaper column in honor of a feminine nation this week—"Bravo, Italy!"—looked more than usually barbarous. Italy has indeed been brave, and one would like to tell her so without outraging her grammar. But let the English admirer note that the Italian adjective is not the equivalent of our "brave." It stands for good quality in anyone—painter, diplomat, grocer, cook.—London Chronicle.

WHY AMERICA MUST SAVE FOOD

Some Questions and Answers Vital to Every Loyal American.

THE MATTER OF PRICES

Why They Cannot be Definitely Fixed. How the Food Administration Protects Against Profiteering.

Here are some questions which are heard every day, asked by those who are interested in the food conservation campaign. Read the answers. They are vital to every American who wishes to aid his country in the food crisis of the coming year.

Why doesn't the government do something about prices?

The law gives no authority to fix any price to the producer, except wheat. The Food Administration provides against profiteering by manufacturers, wholesalers or jobbers; provides against waste and speculation in the main channels of trade; the administration points out a method of fixing fair prices by local communities. The community itself must police retail prices and nobody else can.

Rationing Impossible.

Why doesn't the government lay down a schedule of rations to follow?

There is no schedule of rations that will suit all people. There is one necessary portion for a coal heaver and another for a retired clergyman; one for a boy with hollow legs, another for a young salesman, another for a middle-aged accountant. The mother who feels four children, sweeps, cooks, sews, scrubs and works in the garden, cannot live on what will suffice the old lady with folded hands. What is abundance on a Florida piazza would be famine for a lumberjack where it's 20 degrees below zero. Ration changes every few weeks and every few miles to agree with what is in the market.

The ration must be set by every household and by every individual according to age, occupation, activity and residence. Finding the ration for each home and person requires intelligent study of food values and intelligent advice from those who know how much nutrition is in each sort of food and how much it takes to keep going.

Why not compulsory rations?

The success of America's great experiment in democracy—the volunteer basis—as compared with partial failure of all compulsory schemes is the best answer.

Restricting Wheat.

Why restrict wheat when we have such a big harvest?

The program is calculated to supply home consumption, to send what we ought to furnish the allies, to reserve enough to carry us over the end of the year—and that's all. Unrestricted wheat consumption would not meet the program.

Why let down the wheat rule to 90-20?

We can use more wheat because we have more. This is not so much a let down as might seem. The old rule covered bread and all cereals; this applies to bread, cereal use otherwise to be encouraged. So far as it does let down the enforcement of substitutes, it is because we shall be poorer this year in feed for cattle than in food for people.

Why must we use substitutes?

In addition to economic reasons, the United States and the allies have agreed on a universal victory bread. The least we can do is to share equally with those whose burden is greater than ours.

The Uses of Corn.

Why not ship corn?

We do, we will; but armies can be better fed with raised bread and where there is no proper kitchen outfit for baking, some wheat is needed for flour.

Why is sugar restricted?

To win the war, by sending men, ships borrowed from Asiatic trade, at free by furnishing sugar from American sources.

How long will the sugar restriction continue?

There is no probability of relaxing the program within the next six months.

Why doesn't Canada conserve sugar?

The allowance in Canada is 1½ pounds per person per month.

Why not close the candy shops?

Their sugar supply has been cut down 50 per cent. That's enough until further measures are feasible.

Why make us save when the breweries and distilleries waste grain?

They don't; they are going out of business as fast as their present stocks are exhausted.

Your gripper is pledged to full cooperation in the Food Administration program. Are you helping him to keep that pledge?

We carried the 1918 objectives—wheat, meat, fat and sugar—and now we are settling down to a steady push all along the line.

If we save a spoonful we can send it by ship to our boys. The more we save the more we do.

LIVE STOCK

FEWER HOGS DIE OF DISEASE

Annual Death Rate for Year Ending March, 1918, Reaches Lowest Mark in 35 Years.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The death rate of swine from all diseases for the year ending March, 1918, was 42.1 per 1,000, and is the lowest in 35 years, according to records kept during that period. This unprecedentedly low rate of mortality presents a great contrast with those of earlier periods, particularly with the losses of 133.8 per 1,000 in 1887, 144 per 1,000 in 1897, and 118.9 per 1,000 in 1914, years marked by severe outbreaks of hog cholera. This is even a remarkable reduction from the normal low rate of losses which has remained slightly above 50 per 1,000 when the disease was least prevalent.

The approximate number of hogs on hand January 1, 1918, was 71,374,000. The loss of 42.1 per 1,000 for the year ending March, 1918, therefore represented approximately 3,000,000 of these animals, equivalent to the consumption of pork and pork products by the entire population of the United States for 1917 for 25 days.

These recent losses should be compared with that of 7,000,000 hogs in 1914, which curtailed production to the extent of the national consumption for that year for 37 days.

The marked reduction in the losses of swine in 1918 over preceding periods, in view of the fact that 90 per cent of these losses are due to hog cholera, indicates clearly the benefit from the combined efforts of state and federal agencies in protecting the farmers against the ravages of this exceedingly fatal disease.

GIVE YOUNG PIGS ATTENTION

Care Given at Farrowing Time Has Important Bearing on Food Supply of Nation.

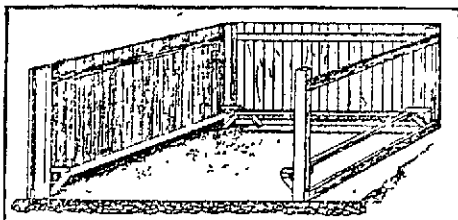

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The farrowing house or pen should be comfortably warm, well ventilated, and well lighted. Above all else, it should be well bedded. Do not allow any circulation of air under the floor. Too many hog growers make the mistake of bedding too lightly. Heavy bedding naturally makes the sow comfortable and warm—conditions necessary if she is to be quiet. Use wheat or rye straw. Wild hay is good, as is millet. Do not use oat straw unless there is absolutely nothing else at hand.

Do not confine the sow in her farrowing pen more than 48 hours before farrowing time if it is possible to avoid doing so. Reduce the heavy feed to some extent, probably about half, for that length of time.

Under no circumstances should the sow have any feed whatever for 24 hours after farrowing. She must, however, have plenty of water at frequent intervals. This water must not be icy cold—that drawn directly from the well is about the right temperature. Commence after 24 hours feeding lightly, increasing the feed gradually for probably a week or ten days, when she may be gotten onto full feed, conditioned on the size of the litter and the milking qualities of the sow.

A good herdsman, for the first week at least after farrowing, will look the pigs over carefully before each feeding. If any indications of scours appear, the sow's feed should be reduced immediately or possibly cut out entirely.

Farrowing Pen With Fenders Will Save Many Little Porks From Being Crushed.

A heavy feed of rich slop given when scours begin to show up possibly may kill the entire litter. A little extra care for these few days is absolutely necessary.

When the pigs are from four or five to ten days old, be on the lookout for thumps. The best-looking fat little pig is the one to go first every time. An almost certain indication is a little roll of fat around the neck. While there is no known cure for thumps, the trouble is quite easily prevented. Plenty of exercise for the pigs is the answer. In cold, stormy weather out-door exercise is impossible, but if a central farrowing house with an alleyway, is used, get the little fat fellows into the alley and put in about ten or fifteen minutes three or four times a day chasing them with a buggy whip, until they are pretty well tired out. If this is impossible, try one or two of the little pigs at a time in a large barrel or box-head, placed by the farrowing pen. The pigs will hear the old sow making a fuss and in running around the barrel hunting for a corner to climb out generally will like the exercise necessary to ward off thumps. A considerable part of the battle is won if the litter gets past the first ten days or so with a good start.

Best of Dairy Feed.

White clover is highly esteemed and makes the best of dairy feed.

OHIO RE-ELECTS GOVERNOR COX

Buckeye State Also Elects Democratic Legislature But Sends Republicans to Congress

Columbus, O.—Unless all signs fail, Ohio has elected a Democratic governor, a Republican representation in the halls of Congress and a Democratic legislature.

Whether it has changed from the wet to the dry column of states seems doubtful. The wets are leading by more than 31,000 votes with more than three-fifths of the precincts tabulated. Dry leaders, however, contended that returns from the rural districts will wipe out what they claim is a temporary majority.

Old Time Opponents.
James M. Cox has been returned governor of Ohio for the third time. He was opposed for the third time by Frank B. Willis, who defeated him four years ago and whom he defeated two years ago. With a few more than 1,500 out of the 5,706 to be heard from, he has a majority over the Republican nominee of more than 30,000 votes, and the complexion of the remaining precincts to be heard from indicates that there is little or no chance of Willis overcoming this lead.

Republicans made a net gain of four Congressmen in Ohio, according to returns compiled. In the present Congress there were 13 Democrats and nine Republicans from Ohio. There will be 13 Republicans and nine Democrats from the Buckeye state in the next Congress.

Former Senator Charles Dick, Republican, was defeated for Congress in the Fourteenth district by Martin L. Davey, Democrat, who was elected to succeed the late Congressman Bathrick, Democrat, who died in office.

ELKINS WINS IN SENATE CONTEST

Col. Watson Defeated by Estimated Majority of 15,000. Neely, Democrat, Wins

Clarksburg, W. Va.—Indications are that Major Davis Elkins, now in France with the American Army, has been elected to the United States Senate over Col. Clarence W. Watson, Democrat, by a plurality of from 12,000 to 15,000.

M. M. Neely (Dem.) has been re-elected to the House, defeating Charles Schunk (Rep.) in the First district.

In the Second district Bowers (Rep.) wins over Hiner (Dem.). In the Third district Reed (Rep.) is elected over Randolph (Dem.). In the Fourth district Woodard (Rep.) is elected over Bowman (Dem.). Goodykoontz (Rep.) apparently is elected over McNeal (Dem.) in the Fifth district. In the Sixth district Echols (Rep.) wins over Littlepage (Dem.).

Berkeley county's complete vote, gives Elkins 307 more votes than Watson. In the congressional fight, Bowers' majority over Hiner is 516. Every Republican on the county ticket—as elected.

Iowa's Vote Light

Des Moines, Iowa.—Early reports show Claude Porter, Dem., running close to W. L. Harding, Rep., incumbent, for governorship, although the Republican leaders claim the governor's re-election by 20,000 to 30,000. The vote in Iowa was very light, which is regarded as favorable to the Democratic candidates.

Phipps Wins in Colorado

Denver.—Based on returns from one-seventh of the state, indications were that the Republicans carried Colorado. Lawrence Phipps (Rep.) was leading Senator F. Shafroth (Dem.) by nearly 3,000 votes, while Oliver H. Shoup (Rep.) had a lead of 4,000 over Thomas Tynan (Dem.) in the race for governor.

McCormick Defeats Lewis

Chicago.—Congressman Medill McCormick defeated Senator James Hamilton Lewis, the Democratic whip, in the contest for the United States senatorship from Illinois, by an estimated plurality of 40,000.

Miss Rankin Runs Third

Helena, Mont.—Sixty-eight scattering precincts out of 1,409 in Montana gave for United States senator: Walsh (Dem.), 4,994; Lanstrum (Rep.), 4,603; Rankin (National), 3,047.

Steamboat a "Flu" Hospital

Charleston, W. Va.—The steamer Virginia, which formerly plied on the Ohio river between Pittsburgh and Cincinnati, has been turned into an emergency hospital, and has been taken to Black Betsy, where there is an epidemic of influenza among the miners and their families. The packet is in charge of Dr. Ritter, of the United States public health service and the Red Cross.

whole battle front. Well to change the subject a little I know you wonder often, and have asked to know in your letters what I am doing and where I am etc. the latter I of course cannot answer I suppose, because of the censor, but as to what I am doing, can tell you that we are not only at the big show, but right in it. And you are reading about us in the papers now right a pretty fair idea about where our party is being played. To take a chance on the censor passing this will try you out on a little puzzle which may give you an idea of our location. So take in order the first and last letters of mothers middle name Margaret and then one letter more than the half of the last word of the name of the hotel in B. before it was changed to Fort Bedford Inn, and you have our location.

Now as to my work. I have been getting the supplies up to the Company while we are at work. It has been some job dodging shells and change locations every day. To keep in touch with the advancing army. Last week for four nights I had about four hours sleep, if you could call it sleep with hundreds of cannons roaring in your ears. It was while getting supplied from a big Divisional Dump three days ago that the mail came in which had brother Fred's letter with the two pictures in. And brother Rays letter an pictures. I was sitting along side of the road reading these when a Jerry shell came across and you would have had a good laugh if you would have seen the dive I made for a shell hole, also that same day and at the same place I met Lieut. Hemm who is stationed near us here and I nearly forgot. That same day while hunting for our dump location some one called my name. I looked around to see George Engle, so if you see the Brightbills tell them this, he is looking and feeling fine. And as they know the Branch of service he is in, tell them his outfit helped to make the Jerrys leave.

This section is in a hurry and made more noise in a minute here selling cars in a life time. Well the next day at four in the P. M. more mail came in so I got both your good letters, also the birthday card from Katy tell her I will write her a letter soon.

Well I will close for this time. Hoping this finds you all well. I remain

Your most loving son,
Milton Sammel
France, 1918.

Dear Home Folks:
I am going to write a short letter today to let you know I am well and contented in France. This is a nice country when it don't rain, but that is not often. I am getting pretty good eats now and I have learned a little bit of French, enough that I can converse some with the people. They are along ways behind the times in their way of living and working, but up-to-date in chattering when you buy from them. I guess they think if you are American you have lots of money. Tell Dad I won't be able to help him this fall with the work, for I have a steady job over here, but I think I will next year. When the Boches are all gone I will come back. I don't get any letters from you no more, not since August, since I got the last one. I guess I run about too much. Tell Jerry to get in Max and come over some time. It is not far and the grapes and wine are fine. I would like to be home when you kill the pigs. I think my stomach will stand new meat now. Have you got any teachers to board this winter and did you get any of the pictures I had taken at Merritt. I left camp two hours after they were taken and I never saw them, but if the man did what was right you would get them. Well, I will close, hoping you are all well.

With best wishes,
PVT. RAYMOND DIEHL.

A GOOD IMPULSE

—By MILDRED WHITE.

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"What a change, Edna, in two short years! Life then was one round of pleasure." "Oh, cheer up, Alice Clayton. Busy yourself with what's going on today and you'll find enough to do. Here I am puzzling myself to find a way to pay car fares, room rent, buy lunches and now a War Savings stamp each month, and all on a salary of $10 a week."

The Claytons at one time had been among the wealthiest families in Seaville. Of late fate had dealt harshly with them; mother and father had been victims of an auto accident and a sudden change in the stock market had left them with little more than the old homestead.

"I have it, Alice!" exclaimed Edna after a few thoughtful moments. "All that old jewelry we have in the bottom of our trunk I will take to the melting pot tomorrow. Guess I will at least get one War Savings stamp for all we have stored away, and that will be my stamp for June. Come along now and help me get it out. Oh, there's my little silver watch, nearly ten years old. I doubt if I used it a dozen times. How proud I was the night I first wore it."

Lunch hour next day was devoted to disposing of her treasures, and evening found her overjoyed with the results. "Oh, sis!" cried Edna; "just look—two War Savings stamps! Isn't that great? I'm so happy I don't know what to do."

"Yes, Edna, it's fine," said Alice; "you're always so fortunate in all your undertakings."

"The little watch I gave to the Red Cross," continued Edna excitedly, "as they said it was too good for the melting pot."

An eventful month followed, and then came Edna's big vacation. "A fine chance to mend your old clothes," advised Alice as she was leaving for work Monday morning.

"Yes," said Edna as she curled herself up on the couch, buried in one of the latest novels.

Monday morning Fred Morse had been discharged from St. Vincent's hospital, and expected to sail for New York the following day. Two long weeks, the longest he had known in his whole life, had been spent in this hospital, the result of having been injured doing his bit. Together with four others, he had been chosen to give a course of lectures at Camp Upland, and the next day they were to start for the U. S. A.

"I'm completely lost without my wrist watch," said Fred to his nurse, Miss Synd.

"Perhaps I can get you one; it was only last night the president of our Red Cross branch announced the receipt of some watches, and if there are any left I will get one for you."

"There," said Miss Synd as she presented Fred with a watch that afternoon, her great brown eyes sparkling with joy, "the only one left." Fred thanked her sincerely and, opening the case, a small piece of paper dropped out, on which was written: "Contributed by Edna M. Clayton, Seaville, Mass." Was he still unconscious, or was it really true? Yes, it surely was so, for there on the cover was the familiar monogram, "E. M. C."

For some time he sat dreaming. In fancy she was with him once again. He could hear her gayly chatting or humming a song as they paddled up river in his favorite canoe. And Edna, pink-cheeked and eyes of azure blue, with her fair golden curls blowing in the gentle summer breeze, resting so comfortably among the cushions.

"Well," thought Fred, "my dear old sweetheart, I'll give you the surprise of your life when I land in New York."

The persistent ringing of the doorbell roused Edna from her reading. What! A letter from Fred Morse postmarked New York! Could it be possible? Quickly tearing open the envelope she read of his receiving the wrist watch and the slip of paper inside. "Will be home by Wednesday. Could we plan for a canoe ride Thursday evening? I will phone you Wednesday night."

Edna could hardly realize that Fred was really coming to see her again, as she had thought he had long since forgotten her. Anxiously she waited for the phone call, and with still greater anxiety for Thursday evening to come.

The great, beautiful moon cast its silvery light upon the old familiar river as Fred and Edna slowly paddled to their favorite "cozy corner." Sheltered by overhanging branches, Fred settled himself down beside Edna. Gently drawing her head to his shoulder, he whispered, "Will you be my own sweetheart forever, Edna? I will be here for a month, and how happy I would be to know that you were really mine before I return to camp. Say yes, dear, and don't keep me in suspense." Edna faintly murmured the desired "Yes," and as Fred brushed back her fair golden curls he kissed and kissed the rosy lips soon to be his very own.

"It seems all too good to be true," said Edna a few hours later as they paddled toward the boathouse. "Who ever dreamed of so much good luck coming from that melting-pot scheme?" "It was well for you," said Fred gazing at his wrist watch, "that you were rescued from that melting pot or I would not be the happy fellow I am tonight. And hereafter, Edna, I shall take the greatest pleasure in providing you with stamps to the fulfillment of your pledge, my own sweetheart, the dearest girl in this whole wide world."

A GLIMPSE OF WHAT THE RED CROSS IS DOING FOR OUR SOLDIERS AND SAILORS

If a young soldier lands sick in a cantament he goes either to the regimental hospital or to the base hospital. The physician who attends him may be one who was brought into the army by the Red Cross and it is more than likely that the nurse who ministers to him has been recruited and trained by the Red Cross activity. The bureau of camp service of the Red Cross serves the soldiers in innumerable ways. Recently one of the boys received a father had died suddenly and requesting him to come home on leave. He obtained the leave with out trouble, but had no money for way for him to obtain it. He applied to the Red Cross and received the money.

In relation to the morale of the soldier affected by news, he may receive from home, the Red Cross has a most important mission. It is now building up a great home service work establishing relations with mothers, wives, and children of soldiers who, through some unexpected turn of circumstances, either are in need or on the edge of need and yet are sensitive or diffident about reporting conditions to governmental agencies. In a tactful confidential way the Red Cross comes to the aid of such families, and to this end of its home service trained. What the Red Cross is doing and has done for such families is reported to the soldiers directly through a Red Cross representative who understands the importance of keeping the matter confidential.

This service is always at the disposal of the soldier, he can call on the home service department of the Red Cross at any time. When the bureau the International Red Cross, and has been given such privileges by the German Government that it may keep American families almost in direct touch with their boys if held prisoner, outside the letters which prisoners are permitted to send home.

The Red Cross serves the sailor as painstakingly as it serves the American soldier. It follows him from the recruiting station to his vigil on the North Sea, where the American fleet is joining with the French and British in guarding against the outlaw U-boat.

Thousands upon thousands of knitters in Red Cross chapter work-rooms are working for the sailors as well as the soldiers, and any suggestion from the naval authorities as to other needs of the "jackies" is promptly acted upon.

Through a donation of $50,660 from the Society of the Colonial Dames of America the Red Cross has been enabled to furnish the operating and surgical equipment for the naval hospital ships "Comfort" and "Mercy."

The total number of sweaters distributed by the Red Cross up to February 1 was 1,402,924; of mufflers 480,253; of wristlets, 563,122; of helmets, 248,967; of socks, 715,116.

Thanks are extended to Mr. A. G. Steiner for the gift of the Red Cross Bulletin. Mr. John Smith and Mr. Foster Boor gave their time and skill to the erection of the Bulletin board and lag. These acts of generosity are greatly appreciated.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(Copyright, 1918, Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR NOVEMBER 10

JACOB DECEIVES HIS FATHER.

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 27:18-29.
GOLDEN TEXT—Speak every man truth with his neighbor.—Ephesians 4:25.
EVANGELICAL READING—Ephesians 4:25-32.
ADDITIONAL MATERIAL—Genesis 27:1-45, Proverbs 12:17-20, Zechariah 8:16-17; Acts 5:1-11.

I. Isaac's Purpose Regarding the Birthright (27:1-4).

The infirmity of old age reminded Isaac that he should set his house in order. The particular matter needing attention was the determination as to who should be the head of the house when he was gone. As to whether Isaac knew what God had told Rebekah concerning Jacob's priority we are not told (Gen. 25:23), but it is evident that he lacked spiritual discernment, being under the sway of his appetite. Even though he was ignorant of God's plan as revealed to Rebekah, Esau's action in marrying heathen women (Gen. 26; 34, 35), ought to have convinced Isaac that Esau was unfit to be the head of the house which was in line of the covenant blessing.

II. Rebekah's Scheme to Frustrate Isaac's Plan (vv. 5-17).

Having heard Isaac's instructions to Esau she took steps to divert the father's blessing from Esau to Jacob. She knew it was God's will that Jacob should have the birthright, but had no scruples as to what method should be used in its accomplishment.

1. Rebekah's instructions to Jacob (vv. 5-10).

She sent Jacob to bring two kids from the goats, promising that she would make savory meat, such as Isaac loved. She knew that Isaac's weak spot was his stomach.

2. Jacob's hesitancy (vv. 11-17).

He foresaw the difficulty and danger which confronted him. His hesitancy was not because he had conscientious scruples against doing the deed, but was afraid of being found out. Some have a desire to do evil, but refrain from it because they are afraid of being caught. Rebekah undertakes to bear the curse that may come, so Jacob's scruples are set aside. She clothes him with Esau's raiment, and places into his hands the food.

III. Jacob Deceives Esau (vv. 18-29).

1. Interview between Isaac and Jacob (vv. 18-25).

The quickness with which the savory meat was brought, aroused suspicion in the mind of Isaac. In order to allay that suspicion Jacob deliberately lied. He not only lied, but blasphemed the name of God in declaring that his success was due to the help of Jehovah. This lie is again repeated when Isaac questions him further. One lie calls for another. Having started on the road of deception he was obliged to lie in order to cover up his deceit.

2. The paternal blessing (vv. 26-29).

It embodied the following particulars: (1) A fertile soil and abundant products (v. 28). Man is dependent upon God for the fruitage of the soil. Few stop to consider their obligation to him for temporal blessings. (2) National pre-eminence (v. 29). God was to give him a numerous and powerful offspring. This has in a large measure been fulfilled, but in a still larger measure it remains to be fulfilled. (3) Pre-eminence among his kindred (v. 29). "The elder shall serve the younger" (4) The object of God's special care (v. 29). Being God's choice, God obligates himself to care for him. Those who would misuse Jacob would suffer; those who would favor Jacob would be favored. Those who are chosen of God enjoy his special care, and woe be to him who would dare to molest them. This included temporal and spiritual blessings. Happy is he who enjoys the friendship of God.

IV. Esau's Remorse (vv. 30-38).

Scarcely had Isaac ceased blessing Jacob till Esau came for the blessing. The secret was now out. Lying and deceit cannot long be hid. In the face of what had been done, Isaac shakes with fear. No doubt this is due to the manifest presence of Jehovah. Esau gives forth a terrible wail. While shedding bitter tears of disappointment, he rages with passion and plans to murder Jacob after Isaac's death. This is a most bitter experience for Esau, but he is merely reaping what he sowed. For a brief indulgence of his flesh he sold his birthright. May Esau's folly warn us of choosing fleshly indulgence rather than spiritual blessings. Whenever one turns from the love of God to the gratification of worldly lusts, he is guilty of Esau's profanity.

Source of Power.

Only those who are lifted up from the earth draw men unto them. The world is possessed by those who are not possessed by it. The momentum of love is the source of power.—Francis G. Peabody.

Sabbath Observance.

If Sunday had not been observed as a day of rest during the last three centuries, I have not the slightest doubt that we should have been at this moment a poorer people and less civilized.—Macaulay.

HOGWALLOW NEWS

DUNK BOTTS, Regular Correspondent.

Some Where, Nov. 1918

Considerable excitement was created among the members of the Loafers' Club at Altam Bank yesterday morning when it was suspected that some German spy was attempting to gas the club. The committee on ways and means was set to work at once and after an investigation by the said committee the cause for the alarm was found and a sub-committee was appointed to notify Harry Watkins who had a batch of limbers or cheese wrapped in a rag and was carrying in his pocket for his dinner so that he would not have to go home for his meal, that this must not happen again. Another member was also notified that he must retire and wash his feet. With the disappearance of these two members the club proceeded with routine business.

Bat Smith, operator of the moonshine still house on Musket Ridge, was fined one thousand dollars and costs last week for the illegal manufacture of liquor. He says the cost of production is getting so high that he believes he is going to be forced out of business. He regards this latest expense a very unnecessary one.

The stewards of the Dog Hill church met last week and voted to double Frank Bertram's assessment for the preachers salary next year. He has publicly announced that he will not pay it and if they insist he will take his chances on getting to heaven in some one of the other denominations.

Blane Perdew has moved from Hogwallow to the Galt Ribs neighborhood. He says the people over there seem much nicer to a fellow than they do in Hogwallow. It is generally predicted here that he will find them just about the same after he has been there awhile.

State of Ohio, City of Toledo, Lucas County, ss. I, Frank J. Cheney, declare that he is senior partner of the firm of F. J. Cheney & Co., doing business in the City of Toledo, County of Lucas, State of Ohio, and that said firm will pay the sum of ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for each and every case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by the use of CHALY'S CATARRH MEDICINE. Helping at Home

YESTERDAY afternoon as I walked into Mrs. Shepherd's home just across the street, I heard her say over the telephone: "That's all I'll need today, thank you."

A few minutes later, she exclaimed, "There! I've forgotten the coffee. I must telephone at once."

I wondered, as she made a second call, which was the more important—the war or her forgotten coffee? If she had only made a list and checked off each article, I know she could have saved a telephone message. And every telephone call saved releases the telephone equipment and the time of the operator for serving the needs of the war program.

The Telephone Company is looking to women in the home to help, and it is just by avoiding "extra" telephone calls that women can do their part.

The Bell Telephone Company of Penna. G. H. Fulmer, Local Manager. Johnstown, Pa.

The Hogford church is now without a pastor. The congregation has made no public announcement as to the why of the matter, but many of the Dog Hill congregation are whispering it around that they do not blame the Hog Ford Preacher for leaving; that his shoes, an dthe rest of his clothes were getting pretty "shabby".

The Loafers Club which meets at Figard's store, Six Mile Run will soon have to move in from the front porch. The proprietor says this is one of the reasons he dreads to see winter coming on, as he is never able to get close enough to the stove to get his feet warm.

It is about time to put up the stove at the store and the store-keeper has discovered that one joint of the pipe and two of the stove legs are missing. He says when you have to order these things now a-days you can never tell when you will get them; that winter may be over before the stove can be put up.

Those who have known Phylus Peck all those years say he looks just the same, whiskers and all, as he did when he came to Hogwallow forty odd years ago, except that he seems just a little shorter from wearing off at the bottom.

Hez Fatters formerly of Chaneysville is another one of our old and highly esteemed citizens who has been a disappointment to the undertakers for many years. He expects to spend another delightful winter around the stove, drinking cider and eating sausages.

There is some talk of the Old Miser leaving Hogwallow. It is thought his leaving is on account of his becoming too well known here.

Valuable Brick Material.

The slime which accumulates at the various mines in the Kolar gold fields, in India, is now being mixed with clay and made into bricks. Instead of being treated as a waste product, as heretofore. The bricks made in this way are said to be superior to those acquired from outside sources and are used extensively in lining circular shafts and other construction work carried on by the mining companies. Later on it is proposed to make fire brick, clay crucibles, and artificial stone.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Bedford Experiences Going Back For Six Years.

Kidney weakness can be cured. But what caused it once will cause it again. Here's a Bedford man who has had several attacks. Several times in six years Mr. Weyant has used Doan's Kidney Pills. He says that Doan's have never failed him. Six years ago Mr. Weyant publicly endorsed Doan's. He now confirms his statement. What better proof of merit? Proved by years of experience. This is convincing testimony. Told by Bedford people—only: W. H. Weyant, grocer, 243 W. Pitt St., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills aren't a new medicine to me. I have used them off and on for a number of years and wouldn't be without them. I have to be on my feet a great deal and do a lot of heavy lifting and at times, this brings on backache and other kidney ailments. A few doses of Doan's Kidney Pills always drive the attacks away."

OVER SIX YEARS LATER, Mr. Weyant said: "I still have a good word for Doan's Kidney Pills. I use them occasionally when I feel in need of a kidney medicine and they soon make me well." Cde. at all dealers. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfgs., Buffalo, N. Y.

SPANISH INFLUENZA OR GRIP BY DR. LEE H. SMITH.

An old enemy is with us again, and whether we fight a German or a germ, we must put up a good fight, and not be afraid. The influenza runs a very brief course when the patient is careful, and if we keep the system in good condition and throw off the poisons which tend to accumulate within our bodies, we can escape the disease. Remember these three C's—a clean mouth, a clean skin, and clean bowels. To carry off poisons from the system and keep the bowels loose, daily doses of a pleasant laxative should be taken. Such a one is made of May-apple, leaves of aloë, root of jalap, and called Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. Hot lemonade should be used freely if attacked by a cold, and the patient should be put to bed after a hot mustard foot-bath.

To prevent the attack of bronchitis or pneumonia and to control the pain, Anuric tablets should be obtained at the drug store, and one given every two hours, with lemonade. The Anuric tablets were first discovered by Dr. Pierce, and, as they flush the bladder and cleanse the kidneys, they carry away much of the poisons and the uric acid. It is important that broths, milk, buttermilk, ice-cream and simple diet be given regularly to strengthen the system and increase the vital resistance. The fever is diminished by the use of the Anuric tablets, but in addition, the forehead and hands may be bathed with water (tepid) in which a table-spoonful of salaratus has been dissolved in a quart. After an attack of grip or pneumonia to build up and strengthen the system, obtain at the drug store a good iron tonic, called "Ironie" Tablets, or that well known herbal tonic, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

Comb Old Toilet Adjunct.

Combs have been used in the toilet since very ancient times. The Greek, the Egyptian and the Roman ladies used them to arrange and hold up their hair; even ladies among the Swiss lake-dwellers seem to have been familiar with them. Some of these were made of wood, some of bone, of horn or of ivory. Specimens have often been found in recent years.

Stupid Ceremony Perpetuated. A mad ceremony was performed at Bedfordshire, England, the other day. To fulfill the terms of an ancient charity bequest a choir boy had to stand on his head in the church yard, while the church warden read parts of the will.

Conscientious objectors are getting much aid from military and civil courts in having their brand of conscience remodeled.

The question is not so much what kind of clothes men should wear, but where they are to get the cash to buy any at all.

Fortunately none of us will need instructions from the editor how to proceed in a correct manner when the band plays "Die Wacht am Rhein."

The Liberty motor may win the war, but that does not relieve us from the necessity of sending over men to operate the motors, and a few other things besides.

The military mule is still humble in spite of the complimentary acknowledgement that he is expected to take up the army burden where the motor trucks lay it down.

Japan, the old-fashioned "yellow peril," refuses to function in that capacity, to the disappointment of Germany and the yellow perils of this country and Russia.

Shoe manufacturers warn that to save leather heels on women's shoes will not be high in fall and winter models. Once more, what has leather to do with wooden heels?

The war has, at least, effectually silenced those old timers who used to relate with smug satisfaction the terribly high prices they paid for food-stuffs in Civil war days.

With coal cut off from breweries it is estimated the fuel saving for the country will be 3,100,000 tons annually. In other words, instead of drinking our beer we shall burn it.

Tanks are helping to win the war on American farms, as well as on the battlefield. But it must be remembered that these tanks are strictly mechanical and not of the human variety.

The government's army program is said to be six months ahead of its task, so far as transporting soldiers is concerned. And the world hopes that this means peace is that much nearer.

Canada has sown 16,080,000 acres of wheat this year, or 1,500,000 more acres than in 1917. American wheat production shows a similar increase. Wars are won upon grain fields as well as on battlefields.

The drawback in having city men go to the farms and work during vacation lies in the danger that jaded city appetites may be so strengthened by outdoor life that the city man will eat more than he earns.

Two western doctors who "treated" the eyes of draft registrants in such manner as to cause them to be rejected by army surgeons have been sentenced to long prison terms. An eye for an eye, says Uncle Sam.

It is now a year since American troops went to France. Judging from what they have accomplished in that time, and by the rate at which they are continuing to go over, their second year ought to see America in the war as a finish factor.

HOPE TO CATCH FEMALE RAFFLES BY PERFUME

Berkeley, Cal.—Berkeley police are literally on the scent of a female Raffles who is believed to have robbed several homes lately. The female thief smokes cigarettes while she works and leaves the stubs scattered about. On each occasion a strong odor of perfume was left in the homes, and the police are sniffing all suspicious-looking females in an effort to detect a similar aroma.

The government is going to draft heavily on the supply of doctors. What a falling off there will be in imaginary ills?

Placing the nation on a sugar ration is a great help to the frugal young man whose girl is trained and accustomed to bonbons.

In the course of time the ubiquitous person who begins every remark with "Say, listen!" will be with us no longer. That will be just as well.

Those Prussian soldiers should have a pretty clear idea by this time of what is meant by a mass-on-tackle play in Yankee football games.

Why is it that during these days of income taxes we never hear anything any more in the papers about what big salaries the movie stars get?

BAKERS TO STOP SUNDAY DELIVERY

Food Administration Forbids it in Interests of Conservation.

THE ACTION IS STATE-WIDE

Ovens Also Must Be Closed One Day of the Week, Stopping Seven-Day Baking.

Howard Heins, Federal Food Administrator for Pennsylvania has approved the action of the Division of Bakers of the Federal Food Administration, of which Fred C. Haller is the head, putting into effect all over the State the same ruling with regard to bakeries that has been in operation in Philadelphia for about a week. Hereafter, all deliveries of bakers' products are forbidden between the hours of 12 o'clock Saturday night and 6 o'clock Sunday evening. This will do away entirely with what is now known as "Sunday Deliveries."

Ovens to Close One Day. It is also ordered that bakers' ovens shall be operated only six days out of seven. It is left to the option of the baker himself to select the six days which he shall work in order that he may best meet the demands of his trade, but the ruling is absolute so far as stopping the present practice of many bakers of baking on seven days of the week.

The idea of these restrictions is the conservation of fuel and labor. It is believed that not only will these highly important commodities be conserved, but also much wear and tear on the delivery service will be prevented. It seems to the officials of the Food Administration that seven days delivery is unnecessary and can easily be reduced to six. Work has been sent to each of the County Food Administrators who will take the matter up with a Baker Lieutenant and his committee. The details of the carrying out of the order is left in every case to the County Administration.

Where It Will Save. Mr. Haller said: "I believe that this order will do much towards the great conservation campaign which Mr. Hoover has in mind and which must be carried out if we are to send abroad the great quantities of food which our armies and our allies need. A strict compliance with this request will undoubtedly result in a great saving in horses, trucks and men engaged in the bakers' delivery service, as well as in raw materials used in the bakery."

Y. W. C. A. WORK IN AMERICA. When the War Department began to get the men of the country ready for war plans were laid without much thought of the women, but a stream of women started coming to the cantonments, with no provision made for them, though many came from distances too far away to return at once. The Government needed the women's help, and the Y. W. C. A. was found to be the only organization equipped for the work. Out of this grew the hostess house of the Y. W. C. A., of which there are now 92, with more being erected.

Y. W. C. A. RECREATION CENTERS IN FRANCE. Nine social and recreation centers for women Government workers in France have been established by the Y. W. C. A. Two are in Paris. One was created for American women in that city, and the other was created at the request of the French Ministry of War for the benefit of girl employees. The remaining centers are for French munition workers and have cafeterias or lunch rooms, and canteens. All work in France has a direct bearing on the army.

NOBLESSE OBLIGE.
A woman, one of the 30,000 British working for the Y. M. C. C., was assigned to scrub the floor of the Eagle hut. She had done this manual work in her life but she accepted the job without protest, going down on her knees with a pail of hot water, a cloth and a scrub brush. When the water in the pail became black the woman accosted a man in uniform. She asked if he would empty the pail and refill it with clean water. There was a theatrical pause, then this reply: "Dammit, madam, I'm an officer."

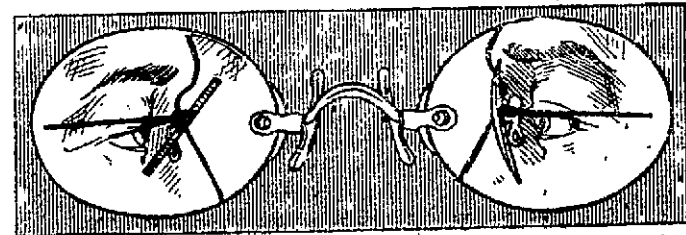

Like a flash the scrubwoman retorted: "Dammit, officer, I'm a Duchess!"
